

PART-I

7) It can be seen that as difference between the linearization point and test point increase, the overshoot and settling time increases. This shows that even though the model shows similar performance in nonlinear system at the linearization point, at points away from it the performance decreases, as expected.

